September is National Preparedness Month

[Florence, WI] – Disasters and emergencies can happen at any time. Are you prepared?

Florence County Health Department would like to remind residents to prepare their family for all types of emergencies including weather events. Put together a plan and practice it with your family at least annually. Based off the 2025 Hazard Vulnerability Assessment, Florence County's risks include extreme weather (drought, severe thunderstorms, flooding, extreme heat/cold, ice storm, and blizzards), power outages, and pandemics.

September is National Preparedness Month. Help us raise awareness about the importance of preparing for emergencies. Build a go-bag with your family's necessities. Ready.gov reminds individuals to

1. assess your needs,
2. make a plan and
3. engage your support network.

If you or a family member has physical, emotional or medical needs, remember to pack these in your family's go-bag; build a kit with everyone in mind. Other items to include in the go-bag are bottled water for each person, batteries, blankets, perishable foods (including a can opener), medications, cell phones, and don't forget your pets! Making an emergency evacuation plan of when, where and what to better prepare your family and reduce the unwanted stress an emergency situation may cause. Share each aspect of your emergency plan with everyone in your support network, including neighbors and relatives. Write down contact information to bring in your go-bag and take photos of important documents, too.
